Set in London in the 1950's, Salad days follows the story of Jane Raeburn and Timothy Dawes who meet at university. After they Graduate, they come across the problem that all young people have: which what to do next?

They meet in a park, soon after their graduation, to try plan their lives. In an instant they agree to get married but do so in secret. After they Marry a passing tramp offers them £7 a week to look after his mobile piano (named Minnie) for a month, and, upon accepting, they discover that when the piano plays it gives everyone within earshot an irresistible desire to dance. Hilarity Ensues.
